Sur ce vin en particulier:

Robert Parker's Wine Advocate (David Schildknecht, janv. 2014): Newly-bottled when I last tasted it in spring, Gallet's 2012 Cotes du Roussillon Villages Segna de Cor ? as usual, half Grenache with Carignan and Syrah, all from vines under 40 years old ? is scented with strawberry preserves but reveals a mid-palate generously juicy if still very ripe and a bit jammy, tinged with coffee and licorice. For now at least, it finishes with some rather gum-numbing tannin, which will hopefully have dissipated to at least some extent after this wine has put time between itself and its bottling date. I would tentatively envision drinking it by 2016.
